IRIS HAUSER: Dress Codes

August 26 to October 11, 2015

"The Puffy Coat"

This exhibition explores the concept of gender identity, self-image, and self expression. The show includes a series of individual portraits of some of Hauser's long-time models, portrayed as themselves, rather than in the roles they usually play as actors in staged tableaux. Each of the models chose how they wished to be portrayed and the resulting portraits are an exploration of identity and self-presentation - how we see ourselves and what we choose to project to the world. While the individuality of each person is accented, the underlying text in this series, as a whole, is the shared humanity and connectivity of each life.

Opening: Wednesday, September 23, 2015 7-9 pm

Artist Talk: 7:30 pm

Admission is free and everyone is welcome

The Gallery is open Monday to Thursday from 11 am to 7 pm; Friday to Sunday 1 to 5 pm.
